Holly Higgins has a B.A. in History from the University of Evansville and a M.S. in Historic Preservation from Ball State University. She has experience in Section 106 compliance projects such as cellular and radio communications towers and transmission lines, evaluating the potential effects these projects have on sites listed in or determined eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. Ms. Higgins has also worked with the Indiana State Museum and Historic Sites Division of the Indiana Department of Natural Resources to develop historic structures reports for state-owned properties throughout Indiana, working on all aspects of the reports, including researching properties, preparing architectural and site descriptions, conducting condition assessments, developing maintenance and interpretation plans, and creating measured field and AutoCAD drawings. Her other work includes completing interpretive signage for roadside exhibits; architectural surveys with Indiana Landmarks, assisting in creating a new website for their Ten Most Endangered Landmark's program and a strategic plan to increase the organization's membership; completing National Register for Historic Places nominations and engaging historic preservation as a community improvement tool with the Great Indy Neighborhoods Initiative.
