Anna Wilmhoff began employment as an Architectural Historian for Cultural Resource Analysts, Inc.'s Lexington office in June of 2026. As an Architectural Historian, Anna's responsibilities include researching and documenting historic properties by conducting archival research and field surveys, evaluating the significance of historic properties, and preparing written reports that provide summary findings and recommendations for various types of cultural historic projects.

Anna received a Master of Arts degree in Public History from Loyola University Chicago in 2025. Prior to her employment with CRA, she completed several internships and seasonal positions in museums and at historic sites, where she researched and developed interpretive content. Anna's interest in historic preservation and the built environment led her to explore opportunities within the field of preservation. As a graduate student, she prepared two National Register of Historic Places nomination forms and interned with Landmarks Illinois, a non-profit preservation advocacy organization. While working with Landmarks Illinois, she researched historic properties included on the organization's 2025 Most Endangered Historic Places in Illinois list.
